Lee MacAteer speaks about how he came to be called “Britain’s best Boss” by the media.

Having completed his A levels, Lee went on to study Law at Leeds University eventually becoming one of Britain’s top business lawyers. At first Lee became a journalist and worked editing “Max Power Car Magazine” . At University he set up a travel company to send students during the summer to America called “Americamp” . He now sends students on gap years to many different parts of the world and even organises travel to Wrestle mania and sponsors major sporting events.

Recently he achieved his boyhood dream and became Assistant Director for Tranmere Rovers Football club!

He has been called “Boss of the year” because he owns the coolest offices in Salford and often does crazy things – like turning the office into a ball pit or sending his staff on free holidays. He owns over 100 companies and financially backs and encourages others such as the internet sensation “Lad Bible”
